Similes in Tangerine by Edward Bloor: A Deep Dive into Literary Devices and Their Impact

Similes in Tangerine by Edward Bloor serve as a powerful narrative tool that enriches the reader's understanding of characters, settings, and themes. Bloor's skillful use of similes—comparative figures of speech that draw vivid parallels—enhances the novel's emotional depth and visual imagery. In this article, we explore how similes function within Tangerine, their role in character development, and their contribution to the novel's overall impact, providing a detailed analysis suitable for both literary enthusiasts and casual readers alike.

Understanding Similes: A Literary Primer

Before delving into the specifics of Tangerine, it's essential to understand what similes are and why they matter in literature. A simile is a figure of speech that compares two different things using the words "like" or "as." For example, "He runs like the wind" vividly suggests speed and freedom. Unlike metaphors, which imply identity between two entities, similes explicitly highlight similarities, making descriptions more accessible and engaging.

Why Do Writers Use Similes?

- To create vivid imagery that stimulates the reader's senses
- To convey complex emotions or abstract ideas through concrete comparisons
- To develop characters and settings with specificity and nuance
- To establish tone and mood within a narrative

In Tangerine, Bloor employs similes with precision, crafting images that resonate emotionally and visually, often anchoring the reader in the novel's tense and layered atmosphere.

The Role of Similes in Characterization

In Tangerine, character development is closely tied to the effective use of similes. Bloor's descriptions often use comparisons to reveal a character's personality, emotions, or physical state.

Erik's Aggression and Intensity

Erik, the antagonist, is depicted using similes that emphasize his fiery temperament and aggressive nature. For example, Bloor describes Erik's anger as "like a volcano ready to erupt," conveying his volatile personality without explicit narration. This simile suggests:

- Unpredictability: Just as a volcano's eruption is sudden and intense, Erik's outbursts can be abrupt and destructive.
- Underlying Power: The comparison hints at Erik's latent strength and potential for destruction.
- Emotional Turmoil: The imagery portrays his anger as a natural, uncontrollable force.

Similarly, Erik is sometimes described as "like a predator stalking prey," emphasizing his cunning and predatory instincts, which shape his interactions with others.

Paul's Innocence and Vulnerability

Conversely, Paul, the protagonist, is often described through similes that evoke innocence and vulnerability. For example, Paul's eyes are likened to "a clear lake," suggesting transparency, purity, and a peaceful demeanor. This comparison:

- Highlights his honest and straightforward nature
- Conveys a sense of calm amidst chaos
- Reinforces his desire for clarity and truth

In moments of doubt or fear, Bloor describes Paul as "like a leaf caught in a gust of wind," illustrating his vulnerability and lack of control over his circumstances.

Setting and Atmosphere Through Similes

Similes also serve to establish the novel's setting and mood, immersing the reader in the environment of Tangerine County and its surroundings.

The Florida Sun

Bloor often likens the intense Florida sun to "a blazing torch" or "a giant spotlight," emphasizing the heat and brightness that dominate the setting. These comparisons evoke:

- The relentless nature of the climate
- The overwhelming brightness that can distort perceptions
- A sense of exposure—both literal and metaphorical—for the characters

Such imagery underscores the challenges faced by the characters living in this environment, influencing their behaviors and decisions.

The Tangerine Groves

The tangerine groves are described using similes that evoke sensory richness. For example, the trees are likened to "giants stretching their arms," creating an image of grandeur and life. This comparison:

- Highlights the scale and majesty of nature
- Suggests a sense of protection or dominance over the land
- Reinforces the importance of the groves to the community's identity

Bloor's use of similes in describing the landscape helps readers visualize the setting vividly, making Tangerine County feel tangible and alive.

Similes as a Reflection of Themes

One of the most compelling aspects of Bloor's use of similes in Tangerine is how they mirror the novel's central themes—truth, perception, and justice.

The Illusion of Reality

Throughout the novel, characters grapple with perceptions versus reality. Bloor employs similes that compare perceptions to illusions or distortions. For instance, Paul describes his understanding of his brother Erik as 'like looking through a cracked window,' suggesting that his view is fragmented or incomplete. This simile reflects:

- The theme of perception versus truth
- The difficulty in seeing reality clearly when emotions or biases cloud judgment

Similarly, the depiction of the school's reputation as 'like a house of mirrors,' hints at distorted images and false appearances—important motifs that challenge characters' understanding of justice and morality.

Justice and Injustice

Similes also underscore themes of justice and injustice. When describing the unfair treatment of certain characters, Bloor might compare societal bias to 'a wall that's as thick as a fortress,' emphasizing insurmountable barriers and systemic oppression.

Notable Examples of Similes in Tangerine

Below is a curated list of some of the most striking similes used in the novel, illustrating their significance:

- 'His face was as hard as a stone.' ? Describes a character's stoicism or emotional detachment.
- 'The sky was like a canvas painted with fiery reds and oranges.' ? Evokes the beauty and intensity of sunsets, symbolizing change or turmoil.
- 'The football hit like a cannonball.' ? Conveys the force and impact of the game, emphasizing the physicality of sports.
- 'Paul felt like a small boat in a stormy sea.' ? Expresses his feelings of vulnerability and chaos in a confusing world.
- 'The school's reputation was like a shadow that followed everyone.' ? Suggests lingering stigma and societal judgment.

These examples showcase how Bloor's similes serve multiple functions—creating vivid imagery, revealing character traits, and reinforcing thematic elements.

The Craftsmanship Behind Bloor's Use of Similes

Bloor's mastery lies in his ability to craft similes that are both accessible and evocative. He often chooses comparisons rooted in common experience—nature, everyday objects, or familiar emotions?making his descriptions relatable yet powerful.

Key characteristics of Bloor?s simile craft include:

- Precision: Each simile is carefully chosen to serve a specific narrative purpose.
- Imagery: The comparisons are rich, painting detailed pictures in the reader?s mind.

Founding and Early Years

Rankin/Bass Productions was founded in 1960 by two visionary entrepreneurs: Arthur Rankin Jr.

and Jules Bass. Originally based in New York City, the studio initially focused on television commercials and small-scale animation projects. Their desire to create family-friendly entertainment with a distinctive aesthetic led them to explore television specials, a burgeoning medium during the 1960s.

The company's early work was characterized by a commitment to high-quality craftsmanship, innovative animation techniques, and storytelling that resonated with audiences. Their first major success was the animated adaptation of "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" (1964), which would become a cornerstone of holiday programming and establish their reputation for producing memorable seasonal specials.

Transition to Holiday Classics and Beyond

Following the success of "Rudolph," Rankin/Bass expanded their portfolio to include other holiday classics such as "Santa Claus Is Comin' to Town" (1970), "The Year Without a Santa Claus" (1974), and "Frosty the Snowman" (1969). Their signature style—combining stop-motion animation (which they called "Animagic") with traditional cel animation—became their hallmark.

Over time, they diversified their offerings to include fantasy and adventure stories, often inspired by literary sources. Notable titles include "The Hobbit" (1977), "The Last Unicorn" (1982), and "The Return of the King" (1980). Their evolution reflected a desire to appeal to broader audiences and to explore more complex storytelling within the constraints of television and limited budgets.

The Art and Technique of Rankin/Bass

Innovative Stop-Motion Animation: Animagic

One of the defining features of Rankin/Bass's productions is their pioneering use of stop-motion animation, which they branded as "Animagic." This labor-intensive process involved meticulously moving physical puppets or models frame by frame to create lifelike motion.

- Process: Animators would reposition puppets tiny increments, then photograph each frame. When played in sequence, these images created the illusion of movement.
- Materials: The puppets were typically made of molded plastic or foam, with articulated joints allowing for expressive gestures.
- Challenges: The process was time-consuming and required precise planning, which often limited the complexity of scenes but also contributed to the distinctive, charming aesthetic.

Their innovative approach resulted in a tactile, handcrafted feel that set their work apart from the more polished, computer-generated animation of later years. The result was a charming, slightly quirky style that became synonymous with their brand.

Combining Animation Techniques

While Animagic was their signature, Rankin/Bass occasionally blended techniques to enrich their storytelling:

- Traditional Cel Animation: Used for backgrounds and certain characters.
- Live-action Inserts: Some productions incorporated live-action sequences, especially in their early specials.
- Hybrid Approaches: For example, "The Year Without a Santa Claus" combined animated characters with live-action segments.

This mixing of techniques showcased their willingness to experiment and adapt, keeping their productions fresh and engaging.

Distinctive Visual Style

The visual aesthetic of Rankin/Bass specials is characterized by:

- Bright, vivid colors.
- Simplified character designs with expressive features.
- Use of miniature sets and elaborate backdrops that evoke a fairy-tale ambiance.
- The use of puppets and models with exaggerated features to enhance expressiveness.

This style has become iconic, instantly recognizable and deeply associated with holiday nostalgia.
